How To Crack:

parative analysis of six broad-spectrum antibiotics against clinical isolates of Acinetobacter baumannii and Klebsiella pneumoniae in Korea. Acinetobacter baumannii and Klebsiella pneumoniae are important nosocomial ogens with strong resistance to antimicrobial agents. The aim of this study was to investigate the in vitro antibacterial activity of linezolid (LZD), levofloxacin (LEV), ciprofloxacin (CIP), imipenem (IPM), piperacillin (PIP), and cycline (TGC). A total of 216 clinical isolates of A. baumannii and 55 K. pneumoniae were collected at two teaching hospitals from South Korea. The MICs for the six antibiotics against 216 A. baumannii isolates and 55 K. umoniae isolates were determined by Etest method. Twenty-one A. baumannii strains were resistant to IPM (inhibition zone diameter (IZD) less than 8 mm), and LZD (IZD less than 8 mm), and 19 K. pneumoniae strains were stant to TGC (IZD less than 25 mm). The IZD of the six antibiotics against A. baumannii and K. pneumoniae were compared. The IZD of TGC against K. pneumoniae was significantly smaller than that of the antibiotics against A. nannii (p less than 0.01). The IZD of TGC was significantly smaller than those of the other antibiotics against K. pneumoniae (p less than 0.001). The IZD of LZD against A. b
