“CAMPAIGN BACKGROUND In the not-too-distant future, the cold war is over. For the first time, the US government is not antagonising Russia, but co-operating with the Russians to fight a common enemy: international terrorism. The game takes place in 1992 and features a world map showing the status of the Cold War: the borders of East and West are drawn in red and blue, with the exception of the Holy Lands (Palestine, Afghanistan and the Middle East in general), the Horn of Africa, North Korea, most of China and areas of Central and South America. The map has four 'sides' to it: the North Atlantic Ocean (Atlantic side), the US and European Union (European side), the Middle East (Middle East side) and the Americas (Americas side). The Atlantic side and the European side are divided by the Iron Curtain, which is drawn as a dotted line, separating North America and the Middle East. While the map is the first and main component of the game, there is much more to it than that. The story of the game can be split into several discrete pieces. Each time you play through the game, you may skip several of these, and the game remembers these decisions when you resume the game. COVER STORY The game opens with the death of Yevgeni Chernyshov, one of the founders of the Shadow Company. Shortly after his death, his son, David Chernyshov is kidnapped. This is where the player's role begins: he/she is an employee of the Shadow Company and is sent to find the kidnapped David. You will find yourself moving around the world to investigate various aspects of the kidnappings and a power struggle between the Russians and the Americans. ENDING Throughout the course of the game, you can choose to go several routes. Some of the endings are chosen by the player as the game unfolds and some choices come up at the end of the game. At the end of the game, the player either saves Russia, the Americans or chooses to protect both sides. THE FOUR PIECES OF THE COVER STORY 1) A trip to Vladivostock The beginning of the game is introduced in Vladivostock (Vladivostok), where the Shadow Company is located. You will start the game in the company's offices and by investigating every detail of this meeting, you may glean some insight into the power struggle between the Americans c9d1549cdd

Game Release Reminder: Episode One of the Zombie Titan Review will be released on Xbox One and Steam on Tuesday, March 28th. The Xbox One version will be available exclusively through the Xbox Game Store, and Steam players should be able to purchase the title directly. We hope you've enjoyed your time on the Zombie Titan, and if you'd like to try the game for yourself, feel free to check out the Steam page. Of course, in case you missed it, here are the launch trailer and the first chapter of the story! The News: About the Author John has been with ZSOE for almost seven years now, and has been a member of the team since he was a tousle-haired sub-editor and fledgling polygon-rendering artist. These days he's mostly busy managing the site (as well as writing/editing text-based stuff), and has even risen to the role of Team Manager. In his spare time, he plays the bass guitar in a local metal band (with a keyboardist and a couple of really cool members), and is working his way through an unexpectedly huge backlog of ZS2 games, almost all of which are either unreleased or in some form of development. To read about the other ZSOE team members and learn more about the company, check out the About Us page. If you want to join the team, check out our Join Us page! About Us Zombies, Smashing Pumpkins, and One-Toned Subjects is a site and online publication dedicated to indie video games, but there are no borders and limits we place on ourselves! All games are welcome, from tiny pixel puzzlers to open-ended epic sagas - if it's got a button, we want to push it. (Film) 'The Invisible Threat' is one of the essential network security policy documents. It was released in November 1985 as a paper presented by the Royal Commission on the Defence of the United Kingdom, chaired by Lord Donald Lamont and written by the Commission's first Commissioner, Dr Jenny Tonge. The research on which the Commission's paper was based was commissioned by Marconi's Francis William Young. Young was the director of research at the National Physical Laboratory (NPL) from 1979 to 1988, where he was a key figure in developing the field of computer forensics and computer security. The research conducted by the Royal Commission did not establish whether the existence of an enemy within the UK was the source of the most valuable threat to the security of the UK. The section on the "invisible threat" from within the UK merely noted that one of the threats had not been identified. Tonge was the First Commissioner of the Commission, and together with Lord Donald Lamont was appointed to chair the commission. Tonge's daughter, Ursula, was also a Commissioner. In 1982 Professor Richard Storry had published his eponymous book 'The Military Geography of the Byzantine and Muslim East', which was studied at several universities. It was published in hardback by Cambridge University Press and in paperback by Pergamon Press. Storry used his book to question the historical assumption that the lack of a formal state in the Christian lands following the collapse of the Western Roman Empire meant that no effective state organisation existed which was a threat to the survival of Christianity. Storry commented: There was a danger that all but the most resolute supporters of the Roman Emperor, if opposition to pagans and heretics became excessive and the survival of Christianity or even the survival of the Empire became in any way formally dependent on it, would Unpossible is a decidedly slick twitchy dodge-'em-up that balances challenge, reward, and chaos. It all begins when a woman is kidnapped outside of her home on the anniversary of her father's death. To rescue her, you must help an old professor solve his most personal case yet. Do you try to tackle it alone? That's not gonna happen. Do you work alongside him? It's a no-brainer. Key features: * Chained progression: progress and earn new items and abilities while you play, not only unlocking new chapters but also new mechanics and ideas. * Intuitive dodging controls: instantly dodge and do a roll away from incoming attacks using the intuitive WASD controls. * Collectible and unique weapons: loot dangerous power-ups and use them to take down enemies in creative and novel ways. * And more: there's over an hour of gameplay, multiple gameplay modes, and three difficulty settings. What the critics say: "It might be my favorite game of the year. Without a doubt, this is the coolest and most different game of the year." - 1Up "For a game that lets you roll around the screen and hit things... it's pretty hard to argue against its desire to make you feel like a terrible person." - Game Informer "It's a fantastic experience, with a simple premise set against a backdrop of beauty and wonder." - Rock, Paper, Shotgun "...If you enjoyed playing Castlevania, with a dash of Gauntlet and a dollop of Dark Souls... You are in for a treat." - Gamezebo About the Developer: Lightspeed is a small two-person indie studio out of Cardiff, Wales dedicated to creating high-quality, engaging experiences for PC and mobile platforms. The studio formed in 2012. Their game Unpossible was published by Indie Game Standouts on 10 February 2018.
