This indicates to Omenserve that it should start searching, and it is not immediately interested in the messages. Most bots are included. When Omenserve starts, it will create a configuration file based on the location of the OMENSERVE file. If this file has not been created, Omenserve will start without a configuration file (this will prevent starting if a config file is missing). Once the file is created, Omenserve will read the channel names in the configuration file and merge them into a list of channels. This means that any channel name in the configuration file can be used to start a search bot without a specific server. This allows Omenserve to work on any server. If no config file is found, Omenserve will start looking for one.
